AEIS case study

02-16-2008

AEIS – The TPARC report for January 2006 pointed out that the stock was attempting a major reversal from a major base. That reversal to an uptrend followed through over the next year and the stock enjoyed a major move up. It subsequently entered the resistance zone at the high end of the trading range and has declined significantly and fallen back into the previous base. The rally from the base in late 2005 carried the stock above $25 per share, a substantial gain.
