AKS case study

03-02-2008

AKS – The TPARC report for November 16, 2006 indicated that AKS remained above the 45-degree Bullish Support Line and that there had been a triple top buy signal. The test of support proved to be successful and a major up trend got underway. That up trend has persisted until the current period of time with only minor corrections along the way. This stock developed into a major winner over the past year and a half.
