

Technical Perspectives on Analyst's Rating Changes

AMD case study

03-03-2007

AMD peaked out in the summer of 2006 and started a major decline. There were several analyst rating downgrades during this period. The stock rallied strongly against the market before turning back down. The relative performance remained below the BRL the whole time and the stock has been among the worst performers over the past year.

W. Clay Allen

