DOW – case study
02-10-2008

DOW – The TPARC report from August 2005 called attention to the triple bottom sell signal and the downtrend that had developed in the stock. It also highlighted the fact that the 45-degree Bullish Support Line had failed. The stock has declined about 20% from that time but the relative performance has been much worse. The stock has remained below the 45-degree Bearish Resistance Line during the decline over the past two years plus.
